Progress in Legal and Policy Development in the Arab Region: Algeria

Since 2017, the Asian Population and Development Association (APDA) has been continuously working to strengthen collaboration among Arab and Asian parliamentarians and promote legal and policy development related to population and development issues. Significant progress has been confirmed in key laws, policy formulation, and institutional reforms in this field, according to surveys conducted by the Forum of Arab Parliamentarians on Population and Development (FAPPD) among parliamentarians in several Arab countries. These achievements have been realized based on recommendations adopted at the Arab-Asia parliamentarians' meetings organized by APDA and FAPPD, through the dedicated efforts of participating parliamentarians and FAPPD's close coordination. The support provided by the Government of Japan underpinning these activities has been highly appreciated and acknowledged by the Arab countries.

Key Recent Legal Reforms in Algeria

1. Amendment of the Family Code

The Family Code was amended, introducing pivotal reforms, including: adoption of the principle of self-initiated divorce, allowing women to request divorce without the husband's consent; abolition of the "obedience" requirement in marital relations (Article 39); strengthening custody rights for mothers after divorce; and raising the minimum legal marriage age to 19 for both genders. However, some discriminatory provisions remain, such as mothers losing custody upon remarriage (Article 66), whereas this restriction does not apply to fathers.

2. Enhancement of Women's Political Rights

A constitutional amendment (Article 31-bis) explicitly strengthened women's political representation, increasing their opportunities to access elected positions.

3. Crime, Sexual Violence, and Harassment

Sexual harassment was criminalized under the Penal Code. Law No. 15-19 criminalized domestic violence but contains a "forgiveness loophole", allowing judicial proceedings to be halted if the victim forgives the perpetrator.

4. National Family Strategy and Family Support Institutions

The Algerian government adopted a National Family Strategy to ensure child and widow support in cases of nonpayment by the father or former husband. National institutions such as the National Council for the Family were also established to strengthen the protection of vulnerable groups.

Japan's Key Contributions to Population and Development in Algeria

1. Collaboration in Traditional Fisheries Management

In February 2024, JICA launched the second phase of a technical cooperation project for managing traditional fisheries in collaboration with Algeria's Ministry of Fisheries, aiming to enhance the sustainability of fishery resources through a participatory and sustainable approach.

2. Enhancement of Technical and Planning Capacities through JICA training programs

- Management of small-scale fisheries within the Blue Economy framework
- Climate-smart agricultural technologies to improve farming in semi-arid regions
- Renewable energy (particularly solar) and industrial productivity improvement through "Kaizen" methodologies.

3. Infrastructure Support for Transport and Seismic Resilience

Japan dispatched experts to Algeria's Seismic Engineering Center to establish safety standards for building design and infrastructure, providing ongoing technical support for natural disaster preparedness.

4. Educational Programs and Knowledge Exchange

Under the African Business Education Initiative for Youth (ABE Initiative), joint programs were organized between Algeria and Tunisia in December 2022, providing Algerian youth with opportunities to study in Japan and receive practical guidance from Japanese companies, enhancing leadership and entrepreneurial skills.

5. Humanitarian Aid and Community Projects

Japan supported small-scale community projects in health and education, including equipping health centers for people with special needs, and provided humanitarian assistance to refugees and vulnerable populations in collaboration with UNHCR in 2023.

6. Strategic Cooperation in Energy and Mining

Recent discussions between Algerian officials and the Japanese ambassador highlighted growing interest in involving Japanese companies in renewable energy projects (high-efficiency, solar power, green hydrogen) and in exploring rare minerals to support Algeria's technological economic transformation.

In cooperation with Hon. Khaled Bourenane, MP Algeria, and Dr. Mohammed Al-Smadi, Secretary General of FAPPD
